The will of Mrs. Charles E. Townsend, who died at her residence in Newburgh February 20, probated before Surrogate Charles E. Taylor in Newburgh yesterday, left her residuary estate to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, with the direction that the request be known as the "Dr. Charles E. Townsend Fund." Persons familiar with the affairs of the late Mrs. Townsend today estimated that the bequest to St. Luke's Hospital would amount to about $500,000.

Churchill Says Warning Against Atrocities Is Being Prepared by Big Three

London, April 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill announced today that a "solemn warning" to the Germans against prison camps atrocities was being prepared to be issued over the signatures of himself, Marshal Stalin and President Truman.

The foreign secretaries in Washington—Vyacheslav Molotov for Russia, Secretary Stettinius for the United States and Anthony Eden for Britain—are preparing the warning to "bring home responsibility, not only to the men at the top who are already on other grounds war criminals in many cases, but also to the actual people who have done this foul work with their own hands."

"The whole matter had become 'one of urgency,' he said and the solemn warning will be issued to the Big Three in a few days.

He disclosed that he had received only this morning a letter from General Eisenhower saying "new discoveries, particularly at Weimar, far surpassed anything previously disclosed." The Buchenwald camp was at Weimar.

A parliamentary delegation will leave tomorrow, on invitation of General Eisenhower, to get first hand proof of the atrocities, disclosed in captured camps, he announced.

Side-stepping attempts to draw a hint from him as to when victory over Germany will be proclaimed, the Prime Minister told Commons he had nothing to say at the present time "except that I deprecate premature speculation upon this subject."

The House cheered and then Churchill added, "the matter is not one we can settle by ourselves."

Describing the matter of German atrocities uncovered in captured prison and concentration camps as "one of urgency," Churchill announced that a letter received from General Eisenhower only this morning said "new discoveries, particularly at Weimar, far surpassed anything previously disclosed."

The Prime Minister said "no words can express the horror which is felt by His Majesty's government and their Allies at the proof of these frightful crimes now daily coming into view."

"A solemn warning has been prepared for the German government, or whatever authorities exist, by agreement with Russia and the United States," he disclosed, and he expressed the hope it would be issued in a very few days.

He said Eisenhower had invited him to send members of Parliament to get first hand proof of the crimes as they are disclosed.

The warning being prepared, he added, will be "not only to the men at the top but to the actual people who had done this foul work with their own hands."

It made clear, too, he said, that "no order from superior authority would be any shields to them."

Battle for Rhine Cost 47,023 Men, Stimson Reports

Washington, April 19 (AP)—The battle for the Rhine and crossing of the river in March cost U. S. Army Ground Forces 47,023 casualties, Secretary of War Stimson reported today.

While this total was larger than in February, when there were 34,468 losses, Stimson pointed out that it was "smaller than for any month since October."

The March casualty figure included 6,214 killed, 35,443 wounded and 5,366 missing.

Since D-Day last June, Stimson disclosed, American ground casualties on the western front totaled 473,215 up to the end of March. Included the 79,795 killed, 331,919 wounded and 58,501 missing.

At the same time, Stimson disclosed that Army casualties in all theatres have reached 513,870 on the basis of names compiled in Washington through April 7. Added to the Navy's losses of 98,008, this put aggregate casualties since Pearl Harbor at 912,478, an increase of 13,088 since last week's report.

Stimson said that while current casualties on the western front are not yet available, they are "not high." In contrast, he said, more than 900,000 Germans were captured in April and the number of enemy killed and wounded has been high.

Since the landings in France last June, he added, Allied forces have taken well over 2,100,000 prisoners.

A breakdown on Army casualties in all theatres and corresponding figures for the preceding week follows:

Killed 162,565 and 159,267; wounded 496,803 and 489,258; missing 83,926 and 86,648; prisoners 70,836 and 67,514. Of the wounded 261,596 have returned to duty.

Similar figures on Navy losses: Killed 38,035 and 37,402; wounded 45,725 and 44,444; missing 10,589 and 10,605; prisoners 4,259 and 4,254.

Truck Monopoly Enjoined by Judge in New York Court

New York, April 19 (AP)—Federal Judge John W. Clancy today permanently enjoined two trade associations, 40 corporations and 36 individuals from participating in what the government described as a trucking monopoly in the New York city produce industry.

The court's action followed the filing of a civil complaint by the Department of Justice accusing the defendants of violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The associations are the Fruit and Produce Trade Association of New York and the Market Truckmen's Association. The corporations and individuals are members of the two organizations.

In a civil decree, to which the defendants consented, the court ordered the dissolution within 60 days of the truckmen's group. Other decrees, in the same action, enjoined organization members from violating as yet unannounced O.P.A. ceiling prices for carting and service fees.

Mervin C. Pollak, special attorney for the anti-trust division of the Justice Department, said "the consent decree and injunction abolish a monopoly of 20 years standing and the Justice Department will continue its cooperation with the O.P.A. to prevent a revival of the abuses."

The complaint charged that the truckmen worked with the fruit and produce group to control fruit and vegetable deliveries in New York involving some 110,000 carloads annually.

Winant Is Moved

London, April 19 (AP)—Lt. John G. Winant, Jr., son of the American ambassador to Britain and a prisoner of war in Germany since 1943, has been moved into southern Germany out of immediate reach of the advancing Allied armies, a recently-released prisoner said today. Winant, a Flying Fortress pilot, was shot down in a raid on Munster.

Archbishop Is Enthroned

Canterbury, England, April 19 (AP)—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher was enthroned today as 55th archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England, amid the blare of trumpets, medieval ceremonies and leftover bomb debris in the Canterbury cathedral. Dr. Fisher, 57, was former bishop of London.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 19 (AP)—Profit cashing on the seven-session rise clouded today's stock market trend and, while assorted peccate favorites managed to achieve further modest progress, many leaders were at a standstill or a shade lower.

Investment optimism still was based on the belief the new administration would cooperate with business in working out transition problems and that expectations of post-war prosperity would be confirmed. The lengthy upswing to eight-year highs, however, inspired caution on the idea a technical correction might be in the offing.

Dealings tapered after an active opening and prices were still mixed near the fourth hour.

Police Discover Body in Coffin

Washington, April 19 (AP)—A gruesome puzzle confronted authorities today with the discovery in a house of a dead woman in a sealed coffin containing the body of another woman believed dead for 33 years.

Officials working on the case haven't solved all the mystery yet, but so far they have put together these pieces of the eerie story:

Mrs. Mary Eva Woodward, 77, prominent here for many years in the Daughters of the American Revolution, died in a hospital Sunday. She had lived alone for many years.

After she failed to appear for several days at a tea shop where she ate her meals, acquaintances went to her house and found her lying on the kitchen floor, her leg broken.

The house was searched yesterday by police. They found the mahogany coffin mounted on two boxes in a back bedroom. There was no furniture in the room except a mahogany rocking chair.

The upper portion of the body, in a good state of preservation, was visible through a glass top in the coffin. It was dressed in a gray burial dress, with high neck and long light sleeves.

Authorities expressed belief the body was that of Mrs. Woodward's mother, Mrs. James B. Woodward, who was said to have died in St. Louis, March 13, 1912.

Refused to Allow Burial
Police were told that the daughter refused to allow her mother to be buried in the family burial plot at Waterbury, Vt., causing a family quarrel.

A neighbor said Mrs. Woodward told her she had sent the body to Egypt to be preserved by a "mummy" whom the daughter met on one of her trips abroad. According to this version, the body was sent back from Egypt and buried in Prospect Hill Cemetery, near Boston.

Causes Exhumation
Twenty-four years ago, Mrs. Woodward moved to Washington and began to worry about her mother's dying wish that she and her only daughter never be separated.

Mrs. Woodward then had the body exhumed, spent several thousand dollars for the mahogany casket, and installed it in her house along with the rocker which belonged to her mother.

"Every afternoon she would sit in the rocker and commune with her mother's spirit," said the neighbor, Mrs. Hattie May Quinter.

Mrs. Woodward's attorney said her will directed that she and her mother be buried in the family plot in Vermont.

At St. Louis records of the Bureau of Vital Statistics for 1912 show the death on April 15 of a Mary Knox Woodward, an artist, at the age of 71. Her body was sent to Memphis, Tenn., presumably for burial.

Forsyth Park Goat Is Destroyed This Morning

The second of two Angora goats that were presented to the Forsyth Park zoo by Rondout Lodge, No. 343, F. and A. M., died. It was found necessary to destroy the animal this morning, owing to its illness and advanced age.

In the late 1920's Highland Lodge of Masons paid a fraternal visit to Rondout Lodge when it was meeting in the lodge rooms at Broadway and Strand, and presented the local Masons with the two Angora goats.

The two goats were later presented to the zoo by Rondout Lodge. The first goat died some time ago.

BARBARISM

For years Americans have been hearing stories of brutal treatment of civilian populations and of "Slave-labor" battalions by the Nazis. But being by nature optimistic, they have dared to believe that the Germans could not mistreat Allied war prisoners in the manner of their Japanese associates in crime.

Today they know better. For as our troops overrun Germany, hundreds of horrified GIs, scores of actual pictures and of verified statements from rescued prisoners, bear witness that the Nazis, whose own soldiers carry complete instructions as to their rights under the Geneva Convention if captured by us, have utterly ignored its provisions when they are the captors.

Quartered in dirty, miserable shacks without room to lie down, without bedding, soap or even Red Cross packages, Americans in one camp were starving to death. At another, guards sold single undersized potatoes and single cigarettes to Allied prisoners at outrageous prices. Those released from a third camp described a forced march across Germany during which at least a thousand Americans, British and other Allies died.

Our soldiers know how cruel and inhuman the enemy is. All civilians should know it too.

CARS AND PEOPLE

This is a good time to get out the old car, especially if it hasn't been used during the winter, and put it through its paces. It may need a general overhauling, but in most cases where it has been well housed there may be little deterioration.

In any case it is well to put it "in commission," and keep it so if possible. The authorities say there will be practically no new cars made until late this year, and very few then; and they will be distributed to war workers, doctors and others who naturally have first claim. The average citizen will probably find no new car available for him for about another year and a half.

This should also be a good year to get a lot of nice walking done, for physical benefit. People who have tried it say that tramping about, whether for economy or pleasure, isn't bad at all, when they once get used to it.

CONSECRATION

It must be said of Franklin Roosevelt that "he gave his country everything he had." His whole effort in this war time was devoted to winning the great conflict, along with the heavy administrative duties of his office. And that consecration cost him his life, as surely as if he had died in the trenches instead of the White House.

A similar comment can be made with regard to all the thousands of men in the armed forces, both the dead and the living, who have striven so nobly and selflessly that the nation might live.

What of us who remain at home, the millions living for the most part an almost normal life, with none of the peril that is the daily lot of the fighting men and the devotion of the war executives? Surely we civilians cannot do less than our best, in whatever part of the great national effort we are engaged.

LIONS CLUB AWARD

In every community, from time to time, occasion brings to the front an outstanding figure who, in a quiet manner, has accomplished the unusual. Too often such recognition awaits the demise of such an individual. The Kingston Lions Club, however, pays tribute now to Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb in its second annual award for meritorious achievement.

In the selection of Dr. Holcomb, the medical profession is honored. At a time when doctors are trying to maintain the health of the nation during the present crisis, the selection is timely. With many of the profession on the battlefields, the doctors although short-handed continue striving to broaden and improve medical care.

Dr. Holcomb is recognized as one of the eminent authorities on the treatment and prevention of tuberculosis. He has been superintendent of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital since 1931 and is a member

THE PLAY GOES ON

Maybe the next slip out of the Yalta secrets will be Manchuria. At any rate, as Europe has its Poland, so Asia must have its captive country and which one would be more logical than Manchuria? So, let us talk about it a little in advance of the excitement.

To begin with, these are the cold facts of the situation: Manchuria is surrounded by Siberia, Mongolia, Korea and North China—also the Yellow Sea. As compared with its neighbors, it is preponderantly rich in agricultural and mineral potentiality, with a healthy northern climate.

Its population, before the Japanese seized Manchuria in 1931, was above 30,000,000, divided as follows: 29,000,000 Chinese, 800,000 Koreans, 250,000 Japanese and about 100,000 Russians. That makes it 76 persons per square mile in a country of 382,000 square miles which is as large as the states of Washington, Oregon and California put together with Florida thrown in. I prefer to use these figures to those for the new state, Manchukuo, which contains extraneous territory.

Manchuria is a big rich country and all of its neighbors have had a keen interest in stealing much or all of it. The Chinese are the only ones, however, who populated it; therefore by the test of the Atlantic Charter, Dumbarton Oaks and the Yalta Declaration, Manchuria is Chinese. Furthermore, in accordance with the Cairo Agreement, the Nine Power Pact and numerous other documents going back to the Sino-Japanese War in 1894 and coming up to Yalta—Manchuria is accredited with being Chinese territory. In fact, one reason for our numerous difficulties with Japan is that the Japanese contested China's claim and insisted that Manchuria belongs to the Manchus, setting up Henry Pu-yi, the last Emperor of China, a Manchurian, at the head of the government of Manchukuo which the Japanese control and which this country never recognized. A case can be made for the Manchus; a case can be made for the Chinese; no case can be made for either Japanese or Russian ownership of Manchuria. And even if a case can be made for the Manchus, it could only lead to a plebiscite and the Chinese could outvote the Manchus who are too few to matter statistically.

In 1644, the Nuchen Tatars (Manchus) conquered China and set up the Fa Ching Dynasty in Peking. They held China until 1911, when that country became a republic. In 1775, the Manchus became conscious of Chinese immigration into their country and fearful that they would be buried in their own homeland beneath an avalanche of industrious Chinese, they set up an anti-immigration policy—which did not quite work as the Chinese have a masterful ability to evade unpopular and unfavorable laws. In fact, in recent years, a real Manchu was pretty hard to find in many parts of Manchuria. His womenfolk were best recognized by costume and headpiece on occasions.

At any rate, the Chinese increased in that area, and after China became a republic, Manchuria, as well as Mongolia, was regarded as indisputably Chinese territory, except for a small enclave at the southern extremity known as the Kwantung Lensed Territory and the South Manchuria Railway Zone which the Japanese held by virtue of conquest from Russia, the Treaty of Portsmouth and agreements with the Chinese.

There seems to be some tendency in over-propagandized America to assume that some of this territory was once legitimately Russian. This has never been so. Russia made attempts at possessing Manchuria but always failed except for the right to build a railroad through that country, which she obtained by corruption and treachery and lost by war. Russia's claim to Poland is based upon some history and previous partitions with some such confusion as the Curzon Line; there is no historical basis for any Russian claim to Manchuria; in fact, there is an historical Chinese claim for the Maritime Provinces of Siberia which once were part of Manchuria and which Russia seized by war.

These are the full and tragic facts of the case which, when the time comes, will be blasted over the air in vicious distortion.

 UNCONSCIOUS PATIENT

It is only natural for the average individual, without medical or first aid training, to hesitate when he comes across one who is unconscious. Yet in many cases, if immediate treatment or care is given, a life may be saved.

In the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases, Dr. Hubert R. Hathaway (University of California) states that obstruction to the breathing is the immediate cause of death in many unconscious or semi-unconscious persons even though complete obstruction of the air passages is preventable in almost every instance.

The commonest form of obstruction of the breathing is caused by relaxation of the muscles of the tongue and front part of throat allowing the soft parts to fall back into the back part of the throat. Noisy breathing is a sign that the obstruction is present. To remove this obstruction the lower jaw is raised and brought forward so that the tongue is removed from the back of the throat.

The next commonest form of obstruction is an accumulation or collection of mucus, blood, food returned from the stomach. Because the individual is unconscious he is unable to expectorate or cough this material up or swallow it. Dr. Hathaway suggests that the material be wiped out with the finger covered with gauze. If this is not effective the patient can be placed with head low and feet high so that the material will drain away from the throat out the mouth or nose, or be rolled onto his abdomen, thus allowing this material to drain out and also permitting his tongue to fall forward. The so-called Sims position in which patient lies on left side and chest, the right knee and thigh drawn up, the left arm along the back is best because it clears the airway to the lungs, and keeps it clear as the head is lower than the chest. The patient remains securely in place, as his upper knee is bent supporting him and making the use of pillows unnecessary. In this position the patient may even be left alone for short periods with more safety than in any other position.

The unresponsive, unconscious patient must never be placed in a sitting position because this permits drainage into the throat and from the throat into the lungs.

ERNIE PYLE'S COLUMN

Okinawa, (by Navy radio)—The company commander, Capt. Julian Dusenbury, said I could have my choice of two places to spend the first night with his company.

One was with him in his command post. The command post was a big, round Japanese gun emplacement, made of sandbags. The Japs had never occupied it, but they had stuck a log out of it, pointing toward the sea and making it look like a gun to aerial reconnaissance.

Captain Dusenbury and a couple of his officers had spread ponchos on the ground inside the emplacement and had hung their telephone on a nearby tree and were ready for business. There was no roof on the emplacement. It was right on top of a hill and cold and very windy.

My other choice was with a couple of enlisted men who had room for me in a little Gypsy-like hideout they'd made.

It was a tiny, level place about halfway down the hillside, away from the sea. They'd made a roof for it by tying ponchos to trees and had dug up some Japanese straw mats out of a farmhouse to lay on the ground.

I chose the second of these two places, partly because it was warmer, and also because I wanted to be with the men anyhow.

My two "roommates" were Corp. Martin Clayton, Jr., of (3400 Princeton street) Dallas, Tex., and P.F.C. William Gross of (322 North Foster street) Lansing, Mich.

Clayton is nicknamed "Bird Dog" and nobody ever calls him anything else. He is tall, thin and dark, almost Latin-looking. He sports a puny little mustache he's been trying to grow for weeks and he makes fun of it.

Gross is simply called Gross. He is very quiet, but thoughtful of little things and they both sort of looked after me for several days. These two have become very close friends, and after the war they intend to go to U.C.L.A. together and finish their education.

The boys said we could all three sleep side by side in the same "bed." So I got out my contribution to the night's beauty rest. And it was a very much appreciated contribution, too. For I had carried a blanket as well as a poncho.

These marines had been sleeping every night on the ground with no cover, except their cold, unheated ponchos, and they had suffered frozen to death. Their backs were so heavy they hadn't been able to bring blankets ashore with them.

Our next-door neighbors were about three feet away in a similar level spot on the hillside, and they had roofed it similarly with ponchos. These two men were Sgt. Neil Anderson of Coronado, Calif., and Sgt. George Valido of Tampa, Fla. (Incidentally there's another Neil Anderson in this same battalion.)

So we chummed up and the five of us cooked supper under a tree just in front of our "house." The boys made a fire out of sticks and we put canteen cups and K rations right on the fire.

Other little groups of marines had similar little fires going all over the hillside. As we were eating, another marine came past and gave Bird Dog a big piece of fresh roasted pig they had just cooked, and Bird Dog gave me some. It sure was good after days of K rations.

Several of the boys found their K rations moldy, and mine was, too. It was the old-fashioned kind and we finally realized they were 1942 rations and had been stored probably in Australia, all this time.

Suddenly downhill a few yards, we heard somebody yell and start running and then there was a lot of laughter. What had happened was that one marine had heated a ration can and, because it was pressure packed, it exploded when he pried it open and there were hot egg yolks over him. Usually the boys open a can a little first, and release the pressure before exploding, so the can won't explode.

After supper we burned our K ration boxes on the fire, brushed our teeth with water from our canteens, and then just sat on the ground around the fire, talking.

Other marines drifted along and after a while there were more than a dozen sitting around. We smoked cigarettes constantly, and talked of a hundred things.

As in all groups the first talk is of surprise at no opposition to our landing. Then the talk drifts to what I think about things over here and how does it compare with Europe? And when I think the war will end? Of course, I don't know any of the answers but we've been making conversation out of it for months.

The boys tell jokes, they tease a lot, constantly drag out stories of their past blazes and sometimes they speak gravely about war and what will happen to them when they finally get home.

We talked like that for about an hour, and then it grew dark and a shouted order came along the hillside to put out the fires and it was passed on and on, and the boys drifted away to their own foxholes or hillside dugouts, and Bird Dog and Gross and I went to bed, for there's nothing else to do after dark in blackout country.

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

One of the first steps taken to replace the old trolley cars in Kingston with buses was that on June 19, 1928, when the Kingston City Transportation Co. made application to the Common Council for such permission.

The petition was referred to the railroad committee of the council, who later approved the petition, and as a result the trolley cars soon disappeared from the streets.

The petition as filed that night called for the establishment of three bus lines, the Broadway line, the Hasbrouck avenue line, and the third was the belt line.

Fare was to be ten cents, with nine cent tokens.

And while on the subject of trolley cars it was on June 4, 1918, that the Common Council adopted an amended ordinance eliminating the five-cent fare limit from the trolley road's franchise, and inserted a provision that the amount of fare be fixed by the state public service commission.

It was shortly after this ordinance was adopted that the trolley road applied for an increase in rates in Kingston, and the public service commission granted the request.

If the aldermen had not adopted the amended ordinance eliminating the five-cent fare limit, it is quite likely that trolley fares would have remained at five cents for some time before the last cars made their runs over the city's streets.

In some of the streets the old trolley tracks were torn up, but in some instances no effort was made to tear up the old tracks and new paving material was laid over the top of the old trackage.

The Common Council at the 1918 meeting adopted the report of its election committee increasing the number of election districts in the city from thirteen to twenty.

The increase in the number of election districts was due to the fact that the normal number of votes cast each election in the city had been doubled by the granting of the right to vote to women.

As I glance back over the years it seems to me that the franchise granted the women to vote did not affect the political status of the city to any extent, and year after year the citizens, both men and women have gone out and voted either the Republican or Democratic tickets.

It seems to me that the average woman casts her ballot according to the vote cast by the men folks of the family. If the men voters are Republicans the women normally vote that party, and, on the other hand, if the men are Democrats the women vote that party.

In other words the granting the right to the women to vote has not changed the political complexion of the city to any extent.

Leaving back the pages of the city's history to June 4, 1928, the death of Kingston's first chief of police occurred that day. The first chief was Stephen D. Hood, who was a lawyer by profession. He was also well known as a vocalist, and had a pleasing tenor voice.

Twenty years later on June 3, 1928, the police board appointed Ernest A. Boss and Joseph P. Fallon as members of the police force. Officer Boss is now Lieut. Boss of the police department, and is the radio expert of the force.

Both men since they were appointed have proven efficient members of the police department.

Referring once more to the death of chief of police it has been held by only three men since the first chief was Stephen D. Hood, and chief was J. Allan Wood, who retired several years ago, and was succeeded by Charles Phinney, who now holds the post of chief.

Molotov Is Coming to U. S., Because Russia Needs Intimate Relations With Truman Administration
 By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 19—Although our friendships and broad policies as they relate to the Allied powers remain unchanged, there is no denying the existence of a new set of circumstances in our relations with foreign governments due to the accession of a new President.

Thus, while Foreign Minister Molotov was not scheduled to come to the United States, Marshal Stalin's decision to send him to preside over the Russian delegation at San Francisco cannot be interpreted as merely a desire to fulfill the American request that Mr. Molotov be deputized to visit America at this time. Rather the sudden decision or reversal at Moscow may be attributed to the need on the part of Russia for establishing at once intimate relations with the Truman administration.

While the foreign governments know that our war and peace objectives remain the same, they do not know the personal equation of the new President or how he intends to conduct foreign affairs. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden had been selected to go to San Francisco to head the British delegation, but he came earlier than planned in order to attend the funeral of the late President Roosevelt and to get acquainted with the latest developments at Washington.

What is it that foreign governments may be concerned about? They know that the Congress is interested deeply in international collaboration and that a treaty based on the Dumbarton Oaks plan is assured of passage. But the thing they do not know is America's attitude toward territorial questions and toward the granting of funds or loans or materials for the rehabilitation of war zones.

To a remarkable extent the formulation of policy has suddenly been shifted from the White House to the Department of State and the foreign relations committees of the Congress. Mr. Truman will be guided by the advice of those who draft policies and recommendations. It is likely to assume in effect the portfolio of secretary of state, which is virtually what Mr. Roosevelt did when he appointed the present secretary. Mr. Roosevelt kept in his own hands the making of the important decisions. All the foreign governments knew it. They had only to contact Mr. Roosevelt either directly or through Harry Hopkins and they knew what the executive branch of the government planned to do or would do. Mr. Stettinius became the organizer and manager of the Department of State and in the capacity has done very well.

Perhaps the decisions will be much the same as they would have been. For Mr. Roosevelt sensed with amazing accuracy and with an uncanny vision just what the direction of American foreign policy should be. The process of formulating policy, however, will be the job of many persons now and the President is likely to make up his mind as between conflicting recommendations if there are controversies rather than to spend his time developing policies of his own initiative.

Important in the series of points needing clarification is the vital matter of the security of the United States in relation to overseas bases. The decision at Yalta was to give Russia one third of Poland as a security barrier. The United States is, by analogy, justified in asking that strategic bases be granted or leased to us in the Pacific just as they have been in the Atlantic, where other friendly powers are concerned, and in getting outright control over any islands wrested from Japan or peacefully under her mandate.

The formula of trusteeship for colonial possessions does not apply to the American desire for strategic bases, because no economic resources or colonial developments are involved. All the territory taken from Japan thus far, which America seeks the unqualified right to develop as air bases would not make a total area thirty miles long and thirty miles wide if it were consolidated in one piece.

It was agreed at Yalta that specific boundaries or areas would be discussed as San Francisco, since this is a part of the peace settlements with Germany and Japan rather than a part of the new League of Nations agreements. But it was decided that the formula for handling old mandates would be discussed in an implicit sense. So the United States is desirous that a clear distinction be drawn between mandated areas or trusteeships that involve jurisdiction over large areas of what are called backward peoples or undeveloped lands and what are termed strategic bases. It is the latter that our military and naval folks feel should be assured to us, and this is probably one of the first thorny problems that the new President will have to settle. Other nations will be willing to concede this, but they may wish also to acquire what amounts to annexation rights over larger areas. It is to avoid establishing embarrassing precedents that conversations on these phases have been going on at the Department of State with the American delegation to San Francisco. Y. W. C. A. Sums Up Ideas For Stay- At-Home Conference Statements Interesting discussions were heard at the final meeting of the stay-at-home conference of the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday night when the findings of each of the groups were presented to the members of the Y. Main issues were concerned with discrimination.

Groups to consider the various topics suggested by the national board have been meeting from time to time during the past few weeks. Statements were prepared by each and presented at last night's meeting for the approval of all. These statements will be sent to the national board for tabulation. This stay-at-home conference idea was used this year to replace the national convention which had been canceled.

The first consideration was in regard to leadership. Miss Mary Staples presented the background discussion from the study group. It was found that there was a definite need for trained leadership in Y. W. C. A. work not only professional leaders but also volunteer workers. Mrs. Henry Milroy presented the statement which suggested more materials and ideas from the national board for training leaders to deal with problems. Among the recommendations for the local group were plans for a leadership training conference in the fall; Y. W. C. A. work with other community groups to sponsor a training course for young people (out of high school age).

Work in Other Countries

Mrs. N. LeVan Haver reviewed some of the items discussed in the study of "Work With Other Countries." She outlined some of the Y. W. C. A. work; some of the methods of approach and assistance given both in peace and war time. Mrs. Clifford C. Rose gave the proposed statement. It was suggested that need be a major factor in choosing countries to be helped. The group also decided "Knowledge and experience in other countries help in understanding local and national problems in the U. S. A. namely: attitude toward racial minorities, toward international issues, social conditions, religious beliefs, labor and educational problems." There was considerable discussion as to whether or not the word "labor" should be deleted, however, the majority voted that it should remain.

Mrs. John Herlihy reported the discussions of "Y. W. C. A. as an International Organization," and "Groups Within the Constituency." Mrs. Boyd Williams gave the prepared statement.

This discussion introduced several of the weaknesses in the local Y. W. C. A.; the lack of facilities such as swimming pool and bowling alleys to give the industrial group the interest needed; the lack of an industrial group at the Y. W. C. A. It was recommended that an international organization must include women of different nationalities (which was explained to include races) as volunteers on committees, on the board if they possess the essential qualifications for the staff, in the membership and in program groups. All members of the study group concurred in the opinion that it was extremely important to include members from all groups if the association is to fulfill its functions.

New Home for 'Y'

The possibility of a new home for the association as suggested under this statement required immediate consideration of raising possible funds. Mrs. Theron Culver in the absence of Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, chairman of the annual campaign, gave a few ideas for this year's drive to be held May 18 to 28.

From reports of the group made by Miss Florence Holton, the actual reading of the statement by Mrs. Richard Howland and the discussion at the meeting last night, the most interesting topic concerned "Public Affairs." The statement called for "vigorous defending the rights guaranteed in the Constitution and work to secure these rights to all sections of the country; the United States participating fully in world peace working with other nations to realize a lasting peace; the widest use and conservation of the abundant human and natural resource of our nation to achieve progressively higher standards of living; the aim to work for the integration of minorities into all phases of community and national life with all the privileges and responsibilities of full citizenship in a democracy."

The main discussions centered around an item automatically included in the statement. The national board would be advised to recommend that the army and navy continue the segregation of white and Negro troops and to recommend to the War Relocation Authority that it discontinue segregating white and Negro blood in the blood bank system. Again a majority ruled that the statement be accepted.

The study group suggested that the local group foster adult educational programs on problems on international economic reconstruction and national financial stability; study bills before the legislature and recommend study of the local situation and work toward integration of all groups. This study group also considered the treatment of Germany and Japan after the war; ratification of treaties; child labor; workers' problems, minority groups, women workers, housing, and immigration.

Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, president of the local association, presided at the meeting. The choral group from the Business and Professional Girls Club under the direction of Mrs. William S. Eiding, assisted in the worship service led by Miss Sadie Gregory, general secretary; and also sang two numbers during the meeting. Preceding the meeting supper was served.

Girl Scout Council Meets

With Mrs. Adrian Kaplan

Ten members of the Girl Scout Council of the Kingston area met at the home of Mrs. Adrian Kaplan, 331 Main street, Tuesday evening. They were Mrs. Henry C. Page, Mrs. Parker K. Brininger, Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, Mrs. Van Dyke Basten, Mrs. Eugene MacConnell, Mrs. Adrian Kaplan, Mrs. Jack Magee, Mrs. DeVall Dunbar, Mrs. George Kernochan and Mrs. Fred Slang.

This was the regular monthly meeting and Mrs. Henry C. Page, chairman, presided. After Mrs. Reynolds had read her report, Mrs. Brininger gave an interesting account of the Ulster County Council meeting which she had recently attended. She reported that the Ulster County Council was delighted with the progress being made in the Kingston area with girl scouts. Nearly $800 was contributed in the Girl Scout birthday gift fund. Further plans for the rally to be held at Forsyth Park June 2 were discussed. Mrs. Fred Slang representing the leaders' club reported all troop activities in the Kingston area.

Mrs. Jack Magee, who is moving away from Kingston tendered her resignation to the council. It was accepted with regret by all of the members. She was presented with a pin as a parting gift.

At the closing of the business meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Kaplan, assisted by Mrs. Page. For the May meeting, Tuesday, May 15, the council was invited to the home of Mrs. Page, 105 Pearl street.

TAXI FARE TROUBLES

A letter from a young woman tells me: "I live in the suburbs of this city, almost five miles from the center of things. This makes it very inconvenient—in fact, often impossible, for the man with whom I have a date in town to take me home. What happened yesterday was this. The host put me in a taxi and then came my embarrassment: This man as he shook hands good-bye, at the same time put several dollars in my hand and explained 'that it is for the fare!' Before I knew what to do, the door was closed and the taxi on its way. It took me about five minutes to get over how I felt about this! Personally, I think a man who is host should pay his guest's way home when he can't take her there, but couldn't he do it more tactfully? Shouldn't he give it to the driver?"

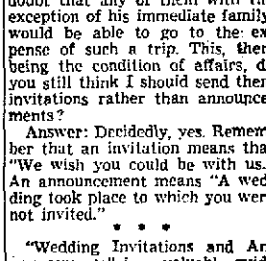

To this I have to say that the situation is in every way irregular. It is certainly the obligation of a young woman's host to see her home and not let her drive alone in the middle of the night. If he can't do this, you should have a local taxi driver from your own neighborhood come for you. As to the payment question (in the daytime, let us say), the only answer is your own. If he wants to pay the fare, he should give it to the driver. He should do about the money he handed you is to give it back. Even to make an accounting, saying for instance, "You gave me $4.00 and the fare with the tip was $2.60; this $1.40 in change would be unthinkable except with a relative or a life friend."

Invitations Always Better Than Announcements

Dear Mrs. Post: Most of my fiancé's relatives live in the country's width away from us and I know when my fiancé arrives from overseas and we have our wedding immediately, there would not be time for any of his relatives to make arrangements to travel this distance after they received a wedding invitation. Anyway, I doubt that any of them with the exception of his immediate family, would be able to go to the expense of such a trip. This, then, being the condition of affairs, do you still think I should send them invitations rather than announcements?

Answer: Decidedly, yes. Remember that an invitation means that "We wish you could be with us." An announcement means "A wedding took place to which you were not invited."

"Wedding Invitations and Announcements" is a valuable guide for the family of a future bride. For this leaflet, send a 3-cent stamped self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Post in care of Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

O.P.A. Prepares Ration Book Five

Food Rationing Will Go On After V-E Day

Washington, April 19 (AP)—There's nothing tentative about food rationing continuing after V-E Day. War ration book five already is being prepared. O.P.A. plans to put it into use late this year or early in 1946. Along with nearly everyone else, O.P.A. expects V-E Day long before that time.

There has been no final decision yet whether the new book will be for a one or two-year period. They are preparing it, however, on the basis of the current book four being good for about 24 months—just in case.

We certainly hope food rationing won't last into late 1947, but it would be more economical to plan on the pessimistic side than to have to print a sixth book, as O.P.A. officials said.

Plans for book five are based on official estimates that meat, dairy products, canned fruits and vegetables and sugar will remain scarce after Germany's defeat.

The new book will be much the same as book four. There will be stamps of one color for meats and dairy products, another color for processed foods and probably a numbered coupon again for sugar. And the entire food program will be shifted to the new book for convenience of housewives.

New York Guard

The New York Guard—1776 to 1945. A Part of the Armed Forces of Our Country for 170 Years.

Written by Major Paul C. Raborg, Public Relations Officer, N.Y.G.

Lieutenant General: Hugh A. Drum, commanding the New York Guard, and Brigadier General George A. Herbst, his chief of staff, welcomed the Chinese ambassador to the United States, Dr. Wei Tuo-Ming, at a special review of the 12th Regiment, New York Guard.

Colonel Louis E. Jallade, commanding the 12th Regiment, expressed his appreciation of the ambassador's visit to one of America's oldest military organizations, the New York Guard. He said that though the ambassador had seen federal soldiers, both in the United States and in the China theatre of operations, this was the first time that "The Army Behind the Army" had been honored by a visit from the representative of our great Chinese ally.

Ambassador Wei, and his aide, a colonel of the Chinese Army, said that traditions have always meant much to their people, and they inspected the historic battle relics of the 12th Regiment with great interest. The regiment was born May 8, 1847, and has an outstanding combat record.

Guardsmen learned from their visitors, much of the amazing Chinese resistance to her Japanese enemy, and China's deep appreciation of American assistance. Former Guardsmen were with Stilwell as they are on every fighting front.

The New York Guard needs over 3,000 volunteers, between the ages of 17 and 35, to bring it to full authorized strength. Application for enlistment may be made at the nearest Guard armory.

Willie Hoppe Holds Big Lead Over Cochran

Dallas, April 19 (AP)—Willie Hoppe of White Plains, N. Y., held a lead today that champion Walker Cochran of San Francisco will be unable to overcome during their last Dallas appearance in a transcontinental three-cushion billiards championship match.

Hoppe ran his mark to 133 points by winning 60-45 in 28 minutes yesterday and 60-58 in 40 minutes last night and now has a total of 2,066 points to 2,473 for Cochran.

The two were supposed to play six blocks of 60 points each in Dallas but were delayed a day in arriving. The first two blocks have been cancelled with Hoppe going to visit his son, who is at the Naval Air Technical Training Center. He also will give an exhibition at the naval base.

Hoppe and Cochran have played 48 blocks of the tour which started in New York and touched at Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago before reaching Dallas. From here they go to Denver, Los Angeles, San Diego, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. There are 24 more blocks counting the two here today and tonight.

Williams Wins Title By Kayoing Zurita

Mexico City, April 19 (AP)—Ike Williams, 21-year-old Trenton, N. J., slugger, held the N.B.A. lightweight championship today after knocking out Juan Zurita in two rounds last night in the Mexican titleholder's home town bout.

A crowd of 35,000 paid an estimated $110,000 to see the five-minute bout. Williams and Zurita were to have clashed in Philadelphia but the scrap was rejected by the Pennsylvania Commission which recognized Bob Montgomery as the 135-pound king. New York state turned down a proposed Zurita-Bobby Ruffin match for the same reason.

The young Negro, who got his first boxing experience fighting for "corner rights" to sell newspapers in Trenton, carried the scrap to Zurita from the opening gong. The Mexican held him off during the first round but could not stand up under Williams' two-listed attack to the head in the second.

When the referee counted ten over the dazed Zurita, the over-excited throng milled around Williams' corner and a dozen policemen were called in to clear the square before the new 135-pound king could leave for his dressing room.

Although Zurita at 133 pounds had a two-pound advantage on Williams, he proved no match for the power-laden fists of the Trenton scrapper who was getting his first crack at a championship after five years of pro ring work.

It was Zurita's first title defense since he took the crown from Sammy (The Clutch) Angott at Los Angeles more than a year ago, although he had lost a non-title bout to Beau Jack and appeared in numerous overweight matches.

Woodstock Club Governors Take Lease

Woodstock, April 19—A joint meeting of governors of the Woodstock Country Club and directors of the Woodstock Properties Co. was held Saturday afternoon to consider plans for a lease from the latter to the former for a period of years.

There were minor differences brought up in discussion of the proposed lease and due to the fact that a new one cannot be consummated in time to comply with club requirements for the opening of the 1945 season a compromise lease covering 21 years was agreed upon, subject to approval of Properties Co. stockholders.

Following this joint meeting the Country Club governors held a meeting and agreed on plans for the coming season which is to see radical changes in membership plans. The new set-up provides that there will be no other classification of membership but that of full membership. In recent years there have been limited memberships such as social, tennis, swimming, etc., but all of these have been abolished by action of the governors.

The governors further voted to increase the charges for green fees to visitors, also to limit the membership to 25 and beyond that number up to 100 the initiation fee of $100 will be entered. The initiation fee obligation has been suspended for several years. The governors arranged to purchase Clarence J. MacArthur, Jr. member of the club, as treasurer for the 1945 season, and Warren J. Townley as golf professional.

War Correspondent Ernie Pyle (third from left) plods along an Okinawa trail with a First Division Marine patrol on April 8, just 10 days before he was killed by Jap machine gun fire on nearby Ie island, while covering the life of the G.I. in the Pacific. Pyle designated the Marine at extreme left, P.F.C. Urban Vachon of Laconia, N. H., as typical battlefront Leatherneck. (AP Wirephoto from Marine Corps.)
